New Reports Emphasize Damage Done By Floods; Big Disasters In Hunan

President Tsao Kun Agrees To Serve As Honorary Chairman Of Relief Drive; Ten Thousand Are Reported Drowned At Hengchow, Hunan

Peking, August 13.—The China International Famine Relief Commission and the China Red Cross have received a letter from President Tsao Kun in which he expresses his sympathy with the sufferers in the recent flood disasters and consents to become the honorary chairman of the National Flood Relief Drive which is being organized.
Telegrams from Hengchow and Paoching, Hunan, report very heavy rain during July and disastrous floods at the beginning of August, it being estimated that ten thousand people were drowned. In Hengchow the water has submerged all the city gates but one, and practically all the houses are washed out, the inundation being even worse than that which occurred in 1894. What the losses incurred will prove to be is difficult to say, but a conservative figure places them at fifty million dollars.
Fresh reports from a member of the London Mission in Shan Tung only serve to confirm the serious nature of the flood which has occurred there consequent on the breaks in the dykes of the Grand Canal. A large area to the northwest of Toheow on the Tientsin-Pukow Railway is under some six to eight feet of water, and the crops here are absolutely ruined with the result that famine is bound to ensue in the coming winter months.
Further news as to the floods in Kiangsu comes to hand in a report from Mr. W. R. Johnson of the Methodist Episcopal Church

CHIHLI SPLITS ON PROBLEM OF WAR AGAINST CHEKIANG

Lack Of Funds Another Cause For Delay In Military Campaign

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, August 15.—The Cabinet this morning discussed a Japanese press report to the effect that the cruiser, Haichow, had suddenly left Admiral Lien Chen-chang's squadron at Shanghai and that its whereabouts is not known. As the Government had not received a report in that connection the Cabinet resolved to telegraph to Admiral Tu Hai-kuei and Marshal Chi Hsueh-yuan asking for information.
That discussion in the Chihli camp and the lack of money of the Peking Government would cause delay in carrying out warlike operations against the Province of Chekiang is the opinion expressed by the Chinese Press. The Shen Pao says that the report of a clash between Kiangsu and Chekiang is not substantiated by facts. At present, all the provinces are working for themselves. No one can direct them to perform any unanimous act. Their interests in the Chekiang Problem vary so they cannot act in a union.
The Central Government is financially straitened. No funds

The League proposes to publish a Non-Christian weekly paper, in which, it declares, it will expose the evils of Christianity.

PEACE IS POLICY

To Propose Another Conference On Arms

(Reuter's American Service)
Washington, August 14.—President Coolidge, in accepting the Republican nomination for the Presidency, proposed further tax reduction and promised to appoint a commission to investigate means for aiding agriculture. He summed up America's foreign policy in the word "peace," and declared that when the Dawes plan was under way, he would propose another international conference to discuss further limitation of armaments. He declared in favor of protection, and indicated that if he were elected, he would adjust the tariffs from time to time as needed. He upheld the adherence of the United States to the Permanent Court of International Justice, and approved of American assistance in the restoration of Europe.

(Reuter's American Service)
The President said that he would have preferred a method of exclusion less likely to offend the sensibilities of the Japanese. He had done all he could to minimize any harm, but the laws had been passed and approved, and consequently the incident was closed. "We must seek," he concluded, "by some means besides immigration to demonstrate the friendship and respect we feel for the Japanese nation."

(Eastern News Agency)
Tokyo, August 15.—A Washington despatch dated August 14 reports:—

In the course of his speech accepting the Republican nomination for the Presidency, President Coolidge paid a high tribute to the services rendered for the last three years by the Republican Government and after expressing his deep regret at the passage of the Japanese exclusion law, said: "We should, by some appropriate means, manifest the friendship and respect which we cherish towards the Japanese people." President Coolidge highly praised the work of the Washington Conference and announced that he intended to convene another disarmament conference immediately after the execution of the Dawes plan.

Decline Of Diplomatic Corps In China Seen By U. S. Minister Schurman

Historic Body Passing, Says American Envoy; Discusses Conditions For Safety Of Foreigners In China

A change in the special position of the Diplomatic Corps in China, the decline of its special power and influence, and its transformation to a mere social body similar to the diplomatic corps in other countries, is forecasted by the Hon. Jacob Gould Schurman, American Minister to China, who is leaving here via the S.S. President Taft for the United States today. Dr. Schurman is going on home leave, and is due to return to Peking before the end of the year. The American Minister received representatives of the press here yesterday. Asked by a representative of THE CHINA PRESS as to the relations between Mr. Karakhan, the Soviet Ambassador, and the Diplomatic Corps, Dr. Schurman stated that Mr. Karakhan might or might not become Dean of the Corps. The question was not, however, of such extreme importance, on account of the fact that the Diplomatic Corps, as an entity of special importance with special influence in Chinese affairs of State was on the decline, owing to the changing circumstances in recent years.

COMMON INTERESTS PASSING
The special and more or less common interests which foreign powers previously possessed in China, Dr. Schurman pointed out, gave the Diplomatic Corps its special position and its special powers. Even so, of course, there was never a time when the entire Diplomatic Corps was interested in any particular question brought up, but there was much more in common between its members than there is now, when some countries, for example, no longer possess extra-territorial rights. Germany and Austria having lost theirs and Russia having voluntarily relinquished hers. This is only one of the changes which have taken place.

To illustrate the present situation, Dr. Schurman brought up three instances when matters had been communicated to him as Dean of the Diplomatic Corps, but in connection with which he summoned a meeting not of the entire Corps, but only of the group

RESUME STRIKE AT SHAMEEN ON POLICE DISPUTE

Situation Is More Serious Than Than Was Anticipated Dispatch Says

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Shameen, August 14.—The strike has been resumed owing to misconception over the reinstatement of the police. The situation is more serious than was anticipated.

(Reuter's Service)
Hongkong, August 15.—Publicity was given in Canton to the Gentlemen's Agreement referred to in the statement issued by the British and French Consuls-General in view of an accusation voiced by the Canton Gazette that the police had been deliberately deceived.

It was agreed that the Councils should accept the resignation of the police and grant each a gratuity based on the length of service, subject to reemployment of such of the men as the Councils may select for police or other service. The strikers accepted the offer of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, whose good offices were solicited, to incorporate the men not so reemployed into the Chinese police force.

It is not known by whose action the arrangements so carefully concluded between the Consuls-General, the Canton authorities and the strike leaders have been temporarily upset. The fact remains that the leaders agreed to terms which include removal of prevention of return of workers and that that prevention has not been removed.

The Councils have warned the workers that after four o'clock this afternoon their places are liable to be filled permanently. It is hoped that what appeared to be a breach of faith in reality has been a mistake which can be satisfactorily rectified.

TROOPS INVADE B. & S. GODOWN; FIGHT ENSUES

Trouble At Changsha As Soldiers Attempt To Take Wheelbarrow

(Independent News Service)
Changsha, Hunan, August 9.—Northern soldiers, on the morning of August 4, created pandemonium in the godown of Butterfield and Swire here, when they attempted to seize wheelbarrows for the conveyance of rice for the army from Tai-ku-mah-tow to their headquarters. Open conflict ensued between the soldiers and the godown coolies employed by the company during which three of the coolies were badly wounded by the uniformed men.

The vernacular press says today that the officer in charge of the northern troops here will settle the case direct with Butterfield and Swire, rather than have diplomatic questions raised. He will pay several hundred dollars as demanded for compensation for goods in the godown damaged during the riot.

In addition to the above demands, it is reported that the company have also demanded that the soldiers be forbidden in future to create a disturbance, and that the trouble makers who caused the last fight be punished as a warning for others so inclined.

The report which was current that the British Consul here has addressed a strong protest to the Hunan Government in this case is groundless, as the comrades of the company has not formally reported this case for consideration of the Consul. Final settlement is expected privately within a short time.

EX-SOLDIERS TO BE REPATRIATED TO CHECK CRIME

Suggestion Made By Head Of Police At Meeting With Unions

Representatives of the various streets union of Shanghai have held another conference with Major Hilton Johnson, acting commissioner of police, in regard to proposals for checking armed robberies in the Settlement, according to the Chinese press.

At this conference Major Hilton Johnson is said to have pointed out to the representatives of the streets unions that a grave menace to the safety of Shanghai lay in the fact that approximately 300,000 disbanded soldiers were in the vicinity of Shanghai. He urged that measures should be taken to repatriate these men.

As the outcome to the meeting, members of the streets unions are taking steps to revive the Local Peace and Mutual Aid Society, which had formerly engaged in the work of repatriating disbanded soldiers but which had dropped its work as a result of lack of funds. A meeting is to be held on Sunday for the purpose of reviving interest in the society.

Announcement has been made by the Chapel police that in order to protect their district against an invasion of armed robbers the number of constables on post duty have been doubled, and military police have been detailed at the railway station to assist the regular constables in picking up suspicious characters.

ITALIAN OPERA COMPANY SAILS ON ORIENT TOUR

Season in Shanghai Will Be Opened At Olympic in October

Mr. A. Carpi has just received a cable stating that the Italian Grand Opera Company engaged by him to visit the Far East sailed from Italy on the 12th inst., arriving here about September 18. They will open their season at the Olympic Theater early in October.

No expense has been spared in forming an absolutely first class company, and Mr. Carpi guarantees that it will be the finest company which has ever visited the East, being far and away above that which he brought out in 1923 and 1922.

Several Italian artists who have been winning great reputation in Milan during the year are included in the company, prominent among whom may be mentioned: Filomena Surinach, lyric soprano, who met with such success recently when singing with the well-known baritone Tito Ruffo, Gailla Castellani, lyric soprano; Alexandra Lashkova, dramatic soprano; Pina Minotti, mezzo; Olga Perzani, soprano; Franco Orbetta, dramatic tenor.

The last named artist has just completed a big contract in America, winning a brilliant success according to press reports. The lyric tenor, Arturo Ferrara is also with the company, together with Mario Albanese, the popular baritone; Serangeli, baritone; Melocchi, bass; and Maestro Antonio Castano. Melocchi has been singing for some years at the Scala di Milano and the Metropolitan Opera House, New York.

In addition to the above Mr. Carpi advises that Signora Anusa Piracini, who is passing through Shanghai at the time of the company's season here, en route to the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, has also been engaged for a few special performances. Further details regarding this great artist will be given later.

Musicians here will also be glad to hear that supporting the above artists several of the favorites of last season will be heard, viz., Scanzani, the popular baritone; Giletta, the delightful tenor; Ambrosio, soprano; Paterna, bass; and Maestro Castagnino. The company should meet with great success here.

moon, the "Ghosts' Festival," was abandoned shortly after the revolution, but, interestingly enough, four years ago when the wife of a high official was taken suddenly ill, the temple officials re-established the custom, and since that time the procession has again been an annual event.

The lunar eclipse which many people state pessimistically was the cause of the fire and will be the cause of other terrible misfortunes, occurred Friday morning from 2:31 a.m. to 6:08 a.m. According to the Chinese in the old days of the Empire, a total eclipse always meant that evil forces were seeking to come between the Emperor, the Son of Heaven, and his Empress. The Emperor was represented by the sun, the Empress by the moon, and the eclipse was represented as a wild dog who was trying to eat the Empress (the moon). The Chinese characters for lunar eclipse (月食) mean, literally, "moon eating." The populace on occasions when there was an eclipse were all banded together to help drive away these evil spirits who were coming between their Emperor and his consort. They assisted by setting off bombs, fireworks and other noisemakers to frighten the spirits off. In the days of the Empire, the coincidence of a total lunar eclipse with the Spirits' Festival would have been regarded as a great loss sign of distress but today, even while it strikes terror to the hearts of many, it is not so awesome a coincidence as it has been.

Anhui Bandits Are Active On Border

(Independent News Service)
Hankow, August 11.—Reports from Lotien indicate that the Anhui bandits have become very active since their capture of the Yenchow District in the eastern border of the Hupoh Province. The Lotien Magistrate has sent repeated messages to Marshal Hsiao Yao-nan asking for more soldiers to be sent there to check the bandits from advancing further.

ence of a strong government capable of maintaining its rule throughout the country and suppressing banditry.

There are a considerable number of foreigners who have suffered, said Dr. Schurman. "The murder of missionaries certainly calls for action by the Government, though these things receive much less publicity, of course, than did the Lincheng affair. It must be remembered, however, that for every foreigner who suffers in this way, though there are many, there are thousands of Chinese victims, whose cases never appear in the foreign press at all. The Chinese are the worst sufferers from the banditry and outlaws throughout the country, and the conditions for the safety of foreigners are precisely the same as those for the safety of the Chinese themselves. I do not see how outrages like the Lincheng and other affairs can cease so long as China lacks a government with the power to really govern the country.

"The only solution is an effective government, capable of eliminating or preventing banditry. In the old days there was a government in Peking capable of maintaining its power over the provinces. At the present time there isn't. That is the difficulty. Asked as to the possibility of the indemnifying of the foreign victims at Lincheng and of other foreign victims of banditry through the refunded Boxer indemnity, before this money was returned to China, Dr. Schurman said that such a course was absolutely impossible. The United States Congress had returned the money to China specifically for educational purposes, and it could not be used for anything else.

THE BOXER INDEMNITY
Questioned as to Marshal Wu Pei-fu's plan for spending the Boxer indemnity money for railroads, and devoting the revenues derived therefrom for educational purposes, the American Minister said the question was similar to that of trust funds in America. The question which trustees had to decide in America was whether it was absolutely safe to invest the money in America, and it could not be used for anything else.

There was also a question as to whether all the money was to be invested, establishing a trust or endowment fund, or some of it expended annually as received. It must be remembered that the money is raised by taxing the Chinese, the American Minister said, and governments do not tax their people to create endowments for themselves, such money usually being expended annually.

Comparing the position here with that of endowment universities in America, Dr. Schurman pointed out an essential difference in the fact that the endowment here would expire in 1944. The indemnity having only twenty years to run, whereas American universities received perpetual endowments. In other words, educational work started with this money might find itself without funds to continue in 1944.

The Chinese Government are now understood to be at work on a scheme for a commission to manage the funds, this commission to consist mostly of Chinese, but including some Americans. The Chinese Government states that the commission to be appointed will consist of experts. Dr. Schurman, in the course of the interview, called attention to the fact that the using of these remitted funds for cultural and educational work was not a requirement originally advanced by the United States Government. In 1908, when the first half of the indemnity was returned to China, the Chinese Government itself proposed to devote the money to educational work, and the American Government willingly accepted this. When Congress recently voted to return the balance of the indemnity, they naturally did so on the understanding that the funds would be used in the same way as before.

The new commission being appointed is to devote a certain part of its funds to scientific education, this being the line in which the Chinese people are most deficient. Scientific education will do much for the development of this great country, and help create the conditions making for order and prosperity throughout the vast territories of China.

Chinese Missionary To Work In Yunnan; Farewell Given Here

A large party of Chinese Christians gathered in the spacious and cool assembly room in the Missions Building, 23 Yuen Ming Yuen Road on Thursday to say farewell to Mr. Hou Yung-lin, a Chinese missionary going to Yunnan.

After the serving of tea, the meeting was presided over by Dr. C. Y. Cheng, and the musical part of the program contributed by Miss L. Y. Nieh and the Musical Club of St. Peter's parish school. Rev. K. T. Chung, representing the society, expressed their hearty support, both from a material and spiritual standpoint, in Mr. Hou's work in Yunnan, and spoke of the development of the home mission by the Chinese Church as being divinely guided during the last few years. Mr. Hou, in reply, said he was not going to Yunnan to preach any form of church or to teach a conventional Christianity, but to preach of how the love of Christ captured him.

Mr. Hou is a graduate of the Nanking Theological Seminary and was for several years a prominent evangelist in the Christian Advent Mission in Anhui. Recently he headed the religious work department of the Nanking Y.M.C.A. and this summer he gave a series of lectures in the Chinese preachers' conference in Kuling which were very helpful to the delegates from the different parts of China. He and his wife and two children will start for Yunnan this month.

At present this society is working in five places in Manchuria and three places in Yunnan. They have ten missionaries doing evangelistic, medical and educational work. They are planning to start work in Mongolia some time this year. The society is entirely supported by Chinese. The annual budget is $27,000 which is raised by 15,000 members in 273 auxiliaries both in China and abroad.

great unless prompt relief can be provided.

(Independent News Service)
Hankow, August 11.—To keep himself in touch with the flood situation in this province, Marshal Hsiao Yao-nan has instructed the magistrates in the various districts to send him photographs showing the conditions of the dykes and the regions that are in the grip of inundation.

(Independent News Service)
Hengchow, Hunan, August 6.—This flood is the worst ever known here. From Yunchow all down this river it is one scene of ruined villages. In one village there are three houses left standing. In many places the part destroyed runs in such proportions as 2-3, 3-4, 3-5. In Hengchow over 1,000 houses fell; in Hengsan and vicinity over 1,700 houses were completely or partially destroyed. We have organized relief committees and are still busy investigating conditions. Hengyang County is quite extensive and it takes time to make a thorough investigation. The local magistrate and some of the most respectable citizens are giving their services.

At present we have a fund and it is growing. Several men are on their way from Shanghai with $4,000. I hear the British American Tobacco Company are preparing to contribute several thousand dollars. The Asiatic Petroleum gave a large contribution. The governor, Mr. Chao Heng-ti, sent $6,000. The Chinese-Foreign Famine Relief Committee gave $3,000 to Hengchow and $2,000 to Mengsang.

Unfortunately we are not doing much for the sick and sickness is so prevalent. Every day a hundred or more lie in Hengchow and vicinity. Reports from the country districts say that people are dying in great numbers.

We have several nurses here, but no doctor. The medicines we use most are almost exhausted and, although a large supply has been ordered, we are anxiously waiting for it to come through. The lack of rain at this time makes the outlook worse. The suffering is great, and we are endeavoring to get much more relief money so that we may give some substantial help to the sufferers. We are doing our best to see that the distribution is done properly.

Hankow, August 12.—In view of the shortage of oxen for labor in the cultivation of fields owing to a great number of them having perished in the recent floods, Marshal Hsiao Yao-nan is taking steps to prevent the further loss of these animals through other agencies. An order has been issued instructing the authorities in the various districts throughout the province to adopt the following measures for the benefit of the farming people.

(1) That the Chinese and foreign merchants be prevented from purchasing any more such animals from the interior.
(2) That the excessive slaughter of oxen in the districts concerned be strictly prohibited.
(3) That the authorities make every effort to protect the farmers from having their oxen stolen by bandits.

London, August 14.—On the adjournment of the Conference at one this afternoon, it was announced that the German delegates had been given two hours to reply to the French proposals with regard to the military evacuation of the Ruhr, which the British and American Delegations have approved.

The decision of the British and American representatives to support the French caused consternation among the Germans, who feel that adoption of the proposals would precipitate the fall of the German Government. The issue is regarded as so momentous that some of the delegates may go to Berlin to consult the Cabinet before replying.

Later.—The German delegates have decided to refer to Berlin by telegraph the French proposition with reference to the evacuation of the Ruhr. They hope to receive an answer by tomorrow.

(Reuters Service)

London, August 14.—The French, Belgian and German conversations yesterday settled the question of an amnesty for expelled German officials and postponed the question of leaving the French and Belgian railwaymen in the Ruhr after the military evacuation because that question was bound up with the Rhineland settlement. Though the discussions are at a deadlock on the subject of military evacuation, another difficult question is that of desistants. The Germans refuse to include these and other by-products of coal in the list of commodities to form part of the reparations payments. The French fear that unless these are included in the deliveries the Germans may dump desistants into France and destroy the industry which the French have built up since the end of the War, and which is very important from the point of view of manufacture of explosives.

Another fear expressed in Paris is that if France barriers the evacuation of the Ruhr for favourable concession in the Commercial Treaty, British industrialists may demand a quid pro quo.

Two More Firms Fined Under New Motor Truck Law

Two more cases of failure to comply with the new municipal regulation here requiring various particulars regarding weight and carrying capacity to be shown on all motor trucks came up before Mr. G. W. King, Magistrate, at the British Police Court yesterday morning.

The first defendant was the China Garage, which was found guilty of failure to affix proper number plates from April 1st in accordance with the regulation, and fined $5.

The second case, that of the Leau Kung Mow Cotton Mill, was complicated by Mr. Southworth, Acting Manager of the Company, stating that the trucks belonged not to them but to their compradore, the Company taking out the licenses. Plates had been put on both the trucks used by the Company, but not until August 6 and August 11 respectively. The Court ordered a fine of $5.

Magistrate King, at the conclusion of the cases, expressed his feeling that these prosecutions had been of benefit in bringing the attention of these regulations to the attention of the community, and making clear the necessity of their enforcement, for the general benefit of traffic here.

Double the Richness of Ordinary Milk

Carnation Milk, as it reaches your table, has double the richness of ordinary milk. It is pure, full-cream milk, evaporated to the consistency of cream. Only water has been removed.

Where you would use cream, use Carnation just as it comes to you, undiluted. Where you would use milk, add an equal part of water to Carnation, and you have a rich milk of normal consistency.

Carnation is appetising and wholesome. More important still, it is absolutely safe, for it is hermetically sealed in tins and then sterilized.

Carnation milk is convenient to buy and economical to use. Get it regularly from your compradore shop.

Remember that dealers make a larger profit on other brands. Insist that you be supplied with Carnation.

Japanese Tennis Players Defeated By Australians In Finals Of Davis Cup

(Reuter's Service)
Providence, R. I., Aug. 14.—The American zone final of the Davis Cup Competition opened today, between Australia and Japan.
G. L. Patterson (Australia) beat Shimidzu (Japan) 7-5, 11-9, 6-4.
P. O'Hara Wood (Australia) beat Okamoto (Japan) 6-4, 2-6, 6-4, 2-6, 6-1.
The match between Patterson and Shimidzu was a ding-dong struggle throughout, especially in the second set, in which Patterson was extended to the utmost. The Australian dropped his tantalising chop-stroke when the score stood at 9/9 and with a series of vicious base-line drives and his unfailing service took the next two games.

In the second, single game, O'Hara Wood's brilliant service and steady driving gave him an easy victory in the first set. The Japanese exhausted himself by frantic endeavors to return the Australian's cannon-ball drives.
Okamoto developed a sudden streak of brilliancy in the second set, constantly outmanoeuvring Wood. Wood's smashing drives in the third set puzzled the Japanese who contended himself with a back-court game. Okamoto won the fourth set chiefly on account of Wood's erratic play. The Australian played a steady game in the fifth set. He took no chances and easily defeated his opponent.

"FAUX PAS" IF YOU WEAR CAP AT PARIS RACE

American Style Is Held Offensive To Rules on Headgear

Paris, July 19.—In every hotel in Paris there should be a sign, conspicuously displayed, reading something like this:
"Our American and English guests who contemplate visiting the race courses at Longchamps or Chantilly during their visit should be warned against wearing their caps on these occasions. Much embarrassment will be avoided if one wears his hat."

To turn invited guests of annual Presidential receptions out of the Elysee Palace into the cold, inhospitable Faubourg St. Honore because they have tried to enter with a pebble in their shoe, instead of a wrinkle, entangling claw hammer, is understandable. But it, nevertheless, remains an established and utterly cold fact that any attempt to enter the "pesage" at the famous Longchamps and equally noted Chantilly race courses with a cap—large, medium or small—perched upon the pinnacle of your otherwise faultlessly dressed person is a crime and misdemeanor against decorum.

VICTIM WARNED
Bury guards and ticket takers who man the turnstiles repulse the cap bearers, one by one, or in droves, if they arrive that way. And if a gruff warning is not enough they will call a policeman. One hundred times out of one hundred the victim is an American or an Englishman.
Imagine such an interdiction at Belmont Park, or, for example, at Epsom.

The cap incident occurs before every big race meeting at the two courses. The crowds pass through the wickets by thousands. The racing committees keep diplomatic officials handy to placate the foreigner who did not know the rule. The guards shove them back, separate them from their parties and, figuratively, throw them into the arms of the official diplomat, hired to explain and arrange matters. With a deprecating smile he begins on the spluttering Anglo-Saxon who is most likely to be saying cutting things about silly rules.

"Ah, monsieur, you are one who has not known of our rule against wearing the casquette into the pesage. Most unfortunate! But monsieur now knows that it is a rule."

VISITOR BALKS
"But what the—" explodes the plain-speaking visitor with the casquette. "What do you want me

YACHTING TODAY

Start At 2:30
The members of the Shanghai Yacht Club will hold their eighth ordinary race upriver, round a mark boat anchored in the Pagoda Reach to portside and return to a finish at the starting line. The boats will make their start from the Police Hulk Line at 2:30 p.m. the first signal being at 2:25 and will race a distance of 12 miles.
Tide: Spring. Range approximately 10 feet, ebb begins at Shanghai about 4:10 p.m.

to do—go back home; miss the races; sit in the street or—what?"
"Monsieur will understand that the pesage is a very exclusive enclosure. One must preserve there the dignity and decorum. The committee, you know, monsieur. Now, if monsieur desires, he may enter the pelouse—the oval portion of the ground inclosed by the track—where there are no special requirements."

"I won't, and you can't!" explodes the Anglo-Saxon gent. His party, all of it fortunate enough to have left at home or not to have owned caps, are waiting inside the gate. He's got to go in—somehow.
DECORUM SAVED
"If monsieur will permit I will suggest a way," continues the racing committee's diplomat. "If monsieur will remove his casquette and place it under his coat as he enters the pesage he may, once entered, place it back upon his head again."
Thus the visiting cap wearer is finally allowed to enter the pesage at Longchamps or Chantilly in bareheaded decorum, which he promptly destroys, "once entered." But the racing committee's rule against that obnoxious Anglo-Saxon headgear, dubbed "casquette," is observed—for a minute or two—and everybody is happy. But how much simpler to sidestep it in the first place. Tourists may take warning.

Foreign Police Officer Held In Coolie's Death

Maitland appeared for the prosecution. Sub-Inspector Thomas Maguire, of Louza Station, gave evidence of arrest. The case as outlined in Court was that the deceased was not doing his duty and the defendant slapped his face. The man was taken to hospital later in the day, and died there the following day.

Mr. Harris, pointing out that the only allegation was slapping a man's face, asked for half-moderate bail. Mr. Maitland, for the prosecution, said he had no objection to bail. Magistrate King remanded the case for one week, until further evidence was available as to the cause of the man's death, and fixed bail at $500.

The man was in hospital from about 4 p.m. on Wednesday to 5 p.m. Thursday, when he died. He was attended by Dr. Cecil J. Davenport. A post-mortem examination was held yesterday, the result of which has not yet been made public.

Lurid descriptions of the alleged attack on the coolie appear in the Chinese press, and there are also editorials protesting vigorously in the matter and demanding stern punishment as an example that coolies and house-servants may not be mistreated.

A meeting of the Ningbo Fellow Provincial Association was held yesterday afternoon to draft resolutions regarding the matter. The association decided to retain the services of a lawyer to hold a watching brief when the case is tried.

KARAKHAN AND JAPAN FAIL TO MAKE HEADWAY

Little Progress Towards Settlement Is Made At Peking

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, August 12.—Although it was emphasised that the talk of a deadlock is premature, it was admitted, in response to inquiries at the Japanese Legation today, that on the main questions arising out of the negotiations with the Soviet Representative in regard to North Szechuan the respective views of Japan and the Soviet Government are as widely divergent as they were months ago.

Beyond crystallizing the Japanese attitude, small progress towards settlement seems to have been achieved, up to the present, by the Japanese Minister's visit to Tokio. Since his return, Mr. Yoshizawa has had six meetings with Mr. Karakhan, the last of which took place on August 9. At the first of these conferences, Mr. Yoshizawa outlined the stand taken by the new Japanese Government and the other five occasions were devoted to an expression of views in reply by the Soviet Ambassador.

The Japanese claim that they have said their final word and that there is no question of getting further instructions from Tokio, as the whole, unless there is some early and important modification of the Soviet Government's attitude. It looks as though the Japanese troops in North Szechuan may quite likely be there another winter.

Interior, reported that extensive repairs of the dykes at Kuangtung on the Yungting River were necessary. General Feng Yushiang's men were carrying on this work, but they required a good deal of material, such as sandbags and timber, and a financial grant was needed accordingly. It was decided that on inspection should be carried out by the Minister of Communications, the Governor of the Metropolitan Area, Mr. Cheng Keh and General Feng Yushiang in order to estimate what funds are necessary.

University Head Writes On Education In China

Dr. Y. S. Tao, president of Tsing Hua College, Peking, has just published a paper entitled "The Role of Modern Education in the Cultural Life of China and the Way to Make Tsing Hua College Play a Significant Part." The paper deals with China's reaction to foreign cultures; discusses the landmarks of modern education in China; questions what is meant by China's vital problems; and, after discussing the financial aspects of the case, concludes with a chapter on Tsing Hua's duty toward the realization of its vision.

The author, in his introduction and summary, says:

"For the last 50 years, improved communications, political and military power, economic penetration, modern schools, returned students, the establishment of the Republic, internal dissension, financial stringency, and the World War, have all acted to tear down absolutely the protective and conservative forces of China. The time-honored system of education has been swept away, and with it many of the good features of Chinese culture. Modern education in China is only a poor imitation of that of the West minus the cultural and spiritual forces that go with it. The younger generation of China has learnt to admire merely the materialistic side of Western civilization, and has forgotten the fact that without the influence of subtle spiritual forces, the Western world could not have achieved so much as it did even in a scientifically and profoundly, so that the edifice of modern culture in China may be built upon a strong and firm foundation. Only by so doing, can leaders of devotion and character be trained for the needs of China."

DRAGON SHAKES HIS TAIL AND GROUND DROPS

Superstitions In Hangchow Have Explanation For Phenomenon

(From Our Own Correspondent)
Hangchow, August 14.—In the Lin Yin valley some days ago the Dragon was disturbed by a thunderbolt, shook his tail and made a hole large enough to swallow a couple of motor cars and set up a lot of superstitious rumors which are still going around. Daily hundreds are visiting the place and looking into the hole with trembling fear. The collapse of earth was due no doubt to the small mountain stream undermining the bank which collapsed with the heavy rains. The bandits here are growing in courage. A rich silk merchant who lives quite near the Hangchow Hospital in the center of the city had a visit on August 12 from six of them, armed with pistols, and no doubt in league with the night watchman, who belongs to the most notorious bandit district in Chekiang, who muzzled Mr. Yin and his wife, chloroformed or anesthetized his daughter-in-law, put her into a ricksha, searched around, found about 200 ounces of gold and made off with the daughter-in-law, to Kong-zen-chiao. Here there was a palaver, and she was awakened from her sleep, got into another ricksha with a good runner who managed to deposit her safely in a friend's house in the Tartar City some miles from the settlement. The bandits meant to hold her for ransom.

The heat is giving way and is being tempered by refreshing showers which are most welcome and much needed. It has been a very dry summer and the canals have not been so low for years. The launches are unable to get to Mokanshan (Sanchiaoou Jetty) and have to stop at Teh Ching. The great need of water supply is pressing itself more and more upon the people, but the long talked of waterworks company are long in getting a move on. Plenty of blowing but no action. It is hoped it will be laid on in time for the Great Exhibition—a little Wembley I suppose—which is planned for next year. A board of managers have already been appointed and arranged the site.

"FOOLISH WIVES"

The Most Marvelous Picture Ever Produced

INTERESTING FACTS CONCERNING THE PRODUCTION

The production of "FOOLISH WIVES" has actually cost $1,162,736.38. The production, story, casts, sets, effects, gowns, costumes and uniforms, properties, which are correct and authentic to the minutest detail, and the actual "shooting" of scenes took from July 12th, 1920, to June 18th, 1921.

From this date on, Mr. von Stroheim personally assembled and put into continuity the story as he had conceived it, which resulted in the cutting down of THREE HUNDRED AND TWENTY REELS (320,000 ft. of film), to THIRTY-TWO reels, which later was reduced to 10,000 feet by Arthur D. Ripley.

The number of people actually employed as "atmosphere" according to the correct statistics, amounted to FIFTEEN THOUSAND. In one particular scene on the "Ocean Promenade" for which a tremendous set had been built, three hundred miles away from the studio, Mr. von Stroheim had the honor of using the very "Upper Four Hundred" of San Francisco's Elite Society as "extras," besides five thousand of the natives of Monterey, Cal.

In the scene of the U. S. Cruiser, which brings the Ambassador and his wife to the shores of Monte Carlo, the real U. S. Cruiser "Salem" and its officers and personnel were used, the Captain of the ship playing the part of the Captain of the story. The Marines who make up the Guard of Honor, were the same Marines who accompanied ex-President Wilson on his trips across the Atlantic. Practically all of the called men and officers of the U. S. Army and Navy shown in the picture were ex-service men of the U. S. Land and Sea Forces, most of them actually disabled men. In addition many real French and British Officers were used, all of them wearing their own uniforms and decorations.

Sun Has Controversy With Consuls Over Arms; Heads Of Merchants' Corps Flee

Chen Lien-Pei And Chen Kun-Shou Quit Homes For Hongkong; Consular Body Refers Matter Of Norwegian Ship's Detention To Peking

(Eastern News Agency)
Canton, August 15.—Perciving that things have developed a serious tendency against them, Chen Lien-Pei and Chen Kun-shou, Commander and Vice-Commander, respectively, of the Merchants' Volunteer Corps have fled to Hongkong.

Rumor has it that the Commander has done a dishonest act in connection with the purchase of the arms and ammunition. In the above circumstances, the attitude of the Merchants' Volunteer Corps has somewhat weakened. The public is attaching importance to the future of the Merchants' Volunteer Corps which has of late proved to be an important political factor and which, in a way, has become a menace to Dr. Sun.

In connection with the forcible detention of the Norwegian steamer, Hav, there is a positive proof that on the 10th instant, Ying Tien-cheng, Chief of the Public Peace Bureau, at Canton, addressed a note to the captain of the steamer, threatening to fire on the steamer in case the captain disobeyed his orders. Moreover, the fact that the Canton Government, on the 10th instant, sent an official note to the Commissioner of the Maritime Customs, asking for ex post facto approval, is generally considered as having infringed upon the powers of the Harbor Master.

CORPS HOLDS OPENING
Despite the fact that the Civil Governor's Office has once again prohibited the enactment of regulations for the establishment of the United Headquarters of the Merchants' Volunteers, the Merchants' Volunteer Corps today carried through the opening ceremony of their United Headquarters. The citizens throughout the city are today celebrating the occasion, suspending their business, but they have decided to call off their general strike at the instance of Dr. Sun Yat-sen.

Yesterday, some 1,500 members of the Merchants' Volunteer Corps forced their way to Dr. Sun's General Headquarters in order to negotiate with him regarding the transfer of the seized arms and ammunition. After his interview with representatives of the Volunteer Corps, Dr. Sun made his appearance before the assemblage and gave them some instruction. The assemblage withdrew soon afterward. In celebration of the establishment of the United Headquarters of the Merchants' Volunteer Corps, crackers are being fired all over the city and Merchants' Volunteers are making a demonstration.

ISSUE DIPLOMATIC
The German arms question is internally a point-at-issue between the Merchants' Volunteer Corps and the Canton Government, while externally it has become a controversy between the Canton Government and Norwegian Consul owing to the fact that the Canton authorities, without orders from the Harbor Master, have arbitrarily taken into custody the Norwegian steamer which has entered the Canton port after going through legal formalities. The Consul Body here, in compliance with the request of the Norwegian Consul, held several meetings in this connection. As a result of these meetings, it has been decided to refer the case to the Diplomatic Body in Peking and to ask for the latter's instructions for the settlement of this issue.

DEBTORS BEAT MAN TO DEATH ON HAILER RD.

Coolie Waylaid And Killed While Trying To Collect $30

One Chinese was beaten to death and another had a narrow escape in an assault committed Thursday night on the Settlement boundary off Hailer Road, according to a report filed with the police of the Harbin Road station. The man who escaped, Tsu Kuei-an, came to the station at about 9:45 o'clock and reported that he, and a friend, Tsang Ben-zung, had been set upon by five men, and that Tsang had been killed.

Inquiries by the police developed that the two men, who are employed as coolies at the Ewo Cotton Mill and live together at 119 Jansin Road, had gone to the Hailer Road district to collect a debt of $30 owed one of them by a man named Tsou who lived in a straw hut on Hailer Road just outside the Settlement limits.

The two friends went first to a hot water shop at 197 Tungchow Road, where they waited the man who owed the money. There, a man, unknown to Tsu, came and called Tsang. After a time, the same man came to the shop and told Tsu that Tsang wanted to see him. Tsu accompanied the man, and as they came to the Settlement limits he saw Tsang, coming from the vicinity of the beggar huts, followed by five men who fell upon him and beat him to death. Tsu fled and reported the matter to the police.

SOVIETS MAY GET DIVORCE AT $1.50 IN FIVE MINUTES

Moscow.—Under a new decree, a divorce can be had in Soviet Russia in five minutes at a cost of $1.50, provided both parties agree to the dissolution of the marriage ties. If, however, one party objects, the case must be referred to the courts. Misconduct does not constitute ground for annulment of marital ties, but desertion, religious superstition, excessive religious piety, incompatibility of temperament and divergence in political views are held to be sufficient causes. No Russian may obtain a divorce and marry more than three times within one year.

Three Arrested In Two Armed Raids On Exchange Shop

Through the arrest Thursday night of Bang Ah-joh by Chinese detectives, police of the Yangtze-poo station believe that they have cleared up two armed robberies committed at an exchange shop at 946 Ward Road.

The most recent of the robberies occurred Wednesday night when nine men, two of them armed, held up the shop and escaped with $45 from the till. Bang Ah-joh, who was arrested in connection with this crime, was taken to the Ying Ziang Kong Police Station and later handed over to the Yangtze-poo Police. Through information furnished by him, the Yangtze-poo police were able to arrest two other men, Koo Sin-wong and Tsang Tung-doo, who are alleged to have been implicated in an armed robbery in the same exchange shop on November 20, 1920 in which a Chinese employe of the shop was killed.

Koo was taken into custody at 303 Wayside Road, and Tsang at 191 Washing Road, and the two men were charged in the Mixed Court yesterday before Mr. Whitmore, British Assessor, and Magistrate Li. The two defendants were remanded for one week.

1,100 Killed In Brazil Revolution

(French Wireless through Reuters)
Rio de Janeiro, August 14.—Eleven hundred persons were killed during the Sao-Paulo rebellion.

New York, Aug. 15.—The New York Herald-Tribune says that American businessmen have been disturbed by the outbreak of another revolution in Brazil which has kept the rubber region of the Amazonas isolated for the past month. The Brazilian Consulate denies knowledge of another outbreak but shippers complain that while everything is quiet as far as Para the Government has forbidden navigation further down the Amazon.

Ferry Firm Opposes Removal Of Pontoon

(Independent News Service)
Hankow, Aug. 11.—The Kunz Chi Ferry Company and several other Chinese organizations have joined in a protest against the action of the American and British Consuls in Hankow in demanding the removal of the Ferry Company's pontoon from its present site, the Custom House Wharf. In spite of the repeated orders from Marshal Hsiao Yao-nan, they insist on having the pontoon there to suit their own convenience.

"Don't Be Sold Life Insurance—Buy It!"

THE above heading was the title over an exceedingly interesting article in a recent issue of the Nation's Business (Washington, D. C.) on the subject of life insurance, which is worthy of note because of the fact that life insurance, from the standpoint of the West, is still a comparatively new idea in Asia. Recently we read in the papers that when the American Congress finally decided to pay its ex-soldiers of the World War their greatly desired bonus, Congress specified the payments to be in the form of paid-up life insurance policies. This is of great significance, for it constitutes recognition of the value of insurance on the part of a great Government which should be of more than ordinary interest to the average person.

In the past most persons have looked upon life insurance as a sort of gambling proposition, a chance to win big money in case a man should happen to be one of the comparatively few in every thousand who meet untimely death within the near future. The appeal of the old-time agents was somewhat the same as that which induced a man to sit in a poker game, to play bridge or perhaps to hazard a few dollars, on the spring races. Now that a great Government has recognised life insurance—in fact has recognised it a second time—it is of interest to consider life insurance from the standpoint of something to be bought rather than from the standpoint of something to be sold to one by an agent.

Although life insurance is something which every man needs and realises that he needs, it is interesting to observe that very few persons ever buy insurance as they would a new suit of clothes, a motor car, or a new home. If a man approached an insurance agent and voluntarily requested a policy, the agent, in all probability, would collapse from astonishment—either that, or would be suspicious of the prospect's ability to pass a creditable test on his health—or might fear that the benighted individual was contemplating suicide.

The writer of the article referred to above, an official of one of the leading companies in New York, emphasises the new idea of insurance which is quite different from the old paradoxical idea of betting on the winning of money by losing life. "Today," he says, "life insurance has come to be recognised as a necessity that should be actively sought and bought, not merely wistfully wished for and passively accepted. Life insurance is the thing that is needed to make certain that our 'good intentions' shall eventuate here on earth and not become mere paying material for another land in another clime."

"Are we not now ready to change somewhat the question, 'How much insurance shall I carry?' to the question, 'How much insurance is needed to carry me?' Have we not reached the point where the individual is ready to take out his pad and pencil and make an inventory of his personal responsibilities and list thereon the answers to some of the following questions:

- 1.—How much cash will my family need to meet various obligations upon my death? How much income should I provide for my wife?
- 2.—Shall it be for life or a term of years?
- 3.—Shall it be for a given amount each year for life, or a larger amount in the earlier years when the children are small, with a decreasing amount after the lapse of a certain number of years, or when the wife has reached a given age?
- 4.—Shall I provide for a college education for the children, with perhaps an added amount for professional training for the boys?
- 5.—What about the mortgage on the home? Shall provision be made for cancellation in case of my death?
- 6.—And what of the business and its possible failure through loss of my personal services?
- 7.—And finally, what of old age and the need to provide against dependency when the earning power has ceased?"

The wise person who considers life insurance from this standpoint ceases to be a prospect and automatically becomes a buyer, according to the authority quoted above. "Instead of thinking of insurance as a lump sum of money, he will be thinking of it as a means of continuing for a certain number of years an income for those who are dependent upon him. The guaranteed economic longevity is purchasable on the basis of its actual cost for the average man. How much should be bought at this rate depends upon the individual's view of the economic value of his life in relation to other lives for a certain number of years."

Vagrants And Vagabonds

THE recent discussion in the United States Court as to what exactly is a vagrant, and which ultimately led to the discharge of a man who, it was alleged, went about begging, is an interesting example of the application of legal interpretation of words and the more accepted meanings of everyday life. What is a vagrant? The dictionaries tell us that he is a person who "strolls from place to place an idle wanderer; one who has no settled habitation; a vagabond." Shakespeare, using a corrupted form of the word, makes Dogberry speak of "the vagrom cat," though the term is not the most ideal unless we adopt as an extension of present-day meanings, the legal significance attached to the synonym "vagabond." A vagabond is "one who wanders from place to place, having no fixed dwelling, or if he has one, not abiding in it; a wanderer; a person who is lazy and generally worthless and without means of honest livelihood; such as wake on the night and sleep on the day, and haunt customary taverns and alehouses, and rove about; and no man wot from whence they came, nor whether they go." The term "vagabond" has now, however, no technical use in the United States and indeed it was held in a Texas case that it was not equivalent to nor synonymous with "vagrant." In the United States a vagrant is arbitrarily defined to include "any of various offenders against good order or persons liable to become a menace to the public peace or a public burden," such as lead idle and dissolute lives without visible means of subsistence. Dogberry's cat, as one who wakes on the night and sleeps on the day, seems to be more of an English vagabond than an American vagrant.

The man whose case led to the interesting discussion in the American Court was not a vagrant in the every-day meaning of the word. He certainly did not stroll from place to place, he was not an idle wanderer, and as for a settled habitation, why, the United States Government itself had provided that for the meantime. The defendant was a seaman, and having left his ship, arrived in Shanghai, and reported himself to the Consular authorities as a destitute seaman. At that moment he would appear to be without visible means of subsistence. But immediately upon that declaration, the authorities had to afford him board and lodging, pending another ship or his return to the United States; so that he was no longer destitute. Nor was he likely to become a public burden; he already was one, by an arrangement which took him outside the vagrancy law. But while he was thus destitute, but not destitute, in order to provide these little luxuries which the Government overlooked, the defendant appears to have indulged in a little begging. Now, had he not been already a guest of the Government, his original State of destitution and his resort to mendicancy would have brought him within the vagrancy law. But how can any man be said to be without visible means of subsistence whose board and lodging bill is not only guaranteed by but paid out of the whole resources of the United States? And that, not by any ex gratia donation of the Government but by the express dictate of law! He could not be a vagrant! His means of subsistence are much too visible for that, so our seaman was found not guilty of the charge laid against him. Nor does he even seem to come within the meaning of the term vagabond. He, surely, had a settled habitation provided by his Government and that would seem to cure all other faults, even if he "waked on the night" and slept when "Jocund day walks on the misty mountain tops."

The argument seems capable of some extension. What would happen, for instance, to one who stayed at the House of detention? He would earn his lodging by "making little 'uns out of big 'uns" or some equally interesting feat, and thus having proved absence of destitution, spend the rest of the day coaxing charitable nickels from hospitable pockets. Fortunately for the community, however, the law is not entirely lacking in means to deal with such an eventuality, and there is more than a little significance in the Judge's warning to the man he dismissed that he might expect the Court to take a different view of the matter if he came up again.

Decline Of The Diplomatic Corps

ALTHOUGH Dr. Schurman, American Minister to China, is too shrewd a diplomat to deliver any utterance to pressmen in an alarmist sense, there is no mistaking the significance of his collective statement yesterday to the representatives of the local Press when he gave expression to the considered view that the Diplomatic Corps was rapidly passing into merely a social entity. The Diplomatic Body in the officially recognised capital of China no longer acts in unity on all questions, but problems, as they arise, are disposed of by the various nations or groups concerned. This condition of things is part of the heritage which the late War has bequeathed, in some form or other, to almost every country in the world. In the case of the Diplomatic Corps, the four-year conflict of nations resulted in the loss of extraterritorial rights to Germany, Austria and other countries, and this, in turn, has led to an entirely new sense of values so far as the Diplomatic Corps is concerned. The present tendency among the representatives of the Powers accredited to Peking is in the direction of disintegration rather than cohesion. Three little incidents have occurred recently which, whilst not important in themselves, serve, at any rate, to show that unison is no longer the distinguishing feature of the Diplomatic Corps' deliberation: (1) When the question cropped up of the handing over of the Russian Legation to M. Karakhan and his entourage, Dr. Schurman, the Doyen of the Diplomatic Corps, did not consult all his diplomatic colleagues but only the representatives of the Protocol Powers; (2) in the matter of the proposed flood relief surtax, Dr. Schurman approached only the Customs Treaty Powers; (3) while in regard to the question of the proposed rendition of the Shanghai Mixed Court, only the representatives of extraterritorial Powers were consulted. Although, of course, the occasions have been rare when all Powers represented in Peking have been eye to eye in respect of any given issue, still their interests in the past have been sufficiently identical to render it possible for their representatives to meet on common ground, and while many foreigners cannot help deploring the decline of the Diplomatic Corps into a social entity, not a few will be inclined to regard this condition of things as a portent of ominous significance so far as foreign prestige is concerned.

Dr. Schurman's reference yesterday to the safety of foreign life and property in China is to be readily welcomed because human life has never before been accounted so cheap as at the present moment in many parts of the country, where the lawless elements of the population are beyond the reach of the law, and, consequently, are free to murder and pillage with impunity. As Dr. Schurman says, a condition under which foreign life in China will be secure may not be hoped for until there is such a condition that the lives of the Chinese themselves are safe—namely a central Government capable of suppressing banditry. In this connection, the masses in China do not seem yet fully to appreciate the vital necessity of developing a public opinion the force of which will be irresistible. Foreign life and property cannot be outraged without the Chinese themselves suffering in the final analysis for every foreigner murdered by bandits, there are perhaps a thousand Chinese victims whose cases never find their way into the newspapers. They die cruel deaths "unhonored, unwept and unsung." And in this matter of organised lawlessness in China, Dr. Schurman can do a real service to foreigners and Chinese alike if he were to rouse his Government to the realities of the situation.

Whilst Dr. Schurman is proceeding to the United States on furlough, it is possible that he intends to bring up many important matters for the earnest consideration of the State Department at Washington. For one thing, murders of foreigners, including Americans, by the uncontrolled outlaws of this country have been alarmingly frequent within recent times. The Yanhsien incident, which resulted in the brutal slaying of Mr. Hawley, is a case in point, and it is a question whether American military and naval forces on the Yangtze and in other disturbed regions of China are adequate to protect the lives and property of Americans. If they are not adequate, they must be brought up to the point of adequacy, and there should be no better spokesman for American interests in this part of the world than Dr. Schurman.

EXCERPTS FROM GREAT WRITERS

THE IDEAL WOMAN

The ideal woman is lovable. She may not be beautiful of face, but she has charm.

She is attractive to men, not repellent.

She is the appeal of Nature. She draws men as the sun draws planets.

Her power is deep, cosmic, as strong and as mysterious as gravitation.

She is the embodiment of love, which is the most persistent, evergreen, and irresistible of human motives.

However forceful her individuality, she cannot lose her strange drawing power.

She is passionate, but differs from her weakling sisters in that her passion is unswervingly loyal.

All the cumulative morality of centuries of conscience centers in her love.

She clings, not from subservience, but from a loyalty as intense as sex itself.

She is free. No man owns her soul nor body. She gives, as sovereign queens give. She cannot barter as commoner women barter, she cannot obey as slaves obey, she cannot yield as towards yield.

She is void of egotism; she is full of self-reverence.

She is happy in girlhood, contented in wifehood, glorified in motherhood.

She is proud to be a woman. She does not want to be a man.

She has wisdom. In every crisis her husband is guided by her instinct.

She has character. She secretly moulds the nature of her children. She is the power behind each one of them.

She is the flowering rose-bush in times of pleasure. She is a high tower in times of trouble.

Her eyes are full of understanding. She knows the feeling back of your words.

Her smile is as the reward of heaven. It is worth more than gold.

She is intelligent as no man is intelligent.

She is brave as no man is brave.

Her vision has that clairvoyance that is bestowed upon no man.

She is variable as water; but as the water of the unfading spring, of the eternal ocean, changing forever, forever fixed.

She is the best inheritance from the world that was. She is the matrix of the world to come.

In proportion as men look up to her, they grow unafraid and wise. When they look down on her, as they treat her with contempt or indifference, they become weak and cruel.

She is not the champion of religious doctrine; she is the incarnation of the religious instinct.

She is the ladder by the brook where man dreams; she reaches to heaven; upon the rungs of her soul-angels ascend and descend.

A Brotherhood Of Planets

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

It came back again—as I was sure it would—the myth of “Edison’s Electric Star.” This time, however, Venus was drawing near her inferior conjunction, which occurred on the first of July, before I received the inevitable letter from someone who had seen her light in the West after sunset, and had listened to the voice of the myth-maker telling him that it belonged to “the Wizard of Menlo Park,” as he used to be called in the days when this legend took its rise; the days when he was mastering the flickering demon of electricity and making it shine steady, and with marvelous brightness, from a minute black thread of carbon, painfully twisted, and shut up without air, in a little transparent vacuum coffin.

“There is a very brilliant star,” runs the letter, “that appears almost directly west about nine o’clock in the evening. Can you advise me the name of it? Someone informed me that Thomas A. Edison projects a brilliant light which he calls the Edison Star. Have you any records which would indicate this to be a fact?”

Well, no records are needed to prove that Thomas A. Edison projects a brilliant light. All the world has seen it, and sees it nightly. His genius also projects a light. It has burned a place for him in American history. But Edison would be the last man to try to rob Venus of her glory, or to seek to get himself translated to the sky under false pretenses.

I have no doubt that he would say, with me: “What a pity that ignorance should so belittle one of the grandest sights that the surrounding heavens present before the eyes of men, staring out incomprehensibly from his little globe!”

Those who missed seeing Venus during the past Spring, and the first month of Summer—and they, too, missed her who saw her without recognition, and only as an optical phenomenon—will have to wait long for another chance, unless they are willing to get up early in the morning, and see her before daylight in her role of “Morning Star,” which she will begin conspicuously to play before the end of July.

Less than this whole globe, gleaming with all its ocean, its snows, its expanding continents aglow with sunshine, its sheets and rolls of billowy clouds ineffably splendid in the upper depths, could equal the spectacle that Venus presents, when she glides through the ether only twenty-five or thirty million miles away from us. Clothed in similar royal robes of light, the earth appears to the charmed and wondering eyes that may be looking forth from the midst of her aureole of illuminated atmosphere.

Two sister worlds pass in the night, which is at once both day and night, on the boundless ocean of space. They follow the same leader the sun; they go with him on his immense journey through the constellations accompanied by their brothers—little Mercury, mysterious Mars, the giants Jupiter and Saturn, the far-off twins Uranus and Neptune, the crowd of little cherub planets, with a thousand names, and no names, “Eros,” “Juno,” “Polyhymnia,” “Hilda,” swimming like purple-smiled nautilus, like “little wafton boys that float on bubbles in the Summer sea,” that is shored by the Galaxy.

If it were only from a sense of brotherhood, of family ties, for the sake of the relationship and companionship of our early mother with these, her planetary kin, we should all know, and rejoice to know, every one of them.

Through the ether, we are of the blood of Venus, of Jupiter, of Mars, and all of the blood of the great solar giant that lights and warms and guides them and us on their way and our way.

This is our squadron sailing the universal sea; to it we belong, and every member of it is nearer to us in every sort of propinquity than anything else in the universe. All bear a common stamp, the stamp of “The Solar System,” which is not the stamp of the system of Sirius, or of the system of Arcturus, or of any system among the stars.

Once Overs

BY J. J. MUNDY

Have you reached the point where you sense the fact that you cannot go on doing as much work as you have, indefinitely?

It occurs to you that a younger or more active man may supplant you.

You wonder what you can do to overcome what you know is a handicap in a world of active youngsters.

The only thing you can do is to make your work better than ever before.

Because of your longer experience, you should be able to do work more nearly perfect than the younger and less experienced man.

The young and active fellow makes more frequent mistakes and is frequently in error in judgment.

The boss usually thinks more of the man who turns out the more perfect work.

It may be necessary for you to put in extra time, for which you may not get extra pay, in order to keep your end up, but it would be better for you to do this rather than lose your job.

Fear spoils a man’s work and that fear of losing your job is not justified, if you do work that is beyond criticism.

Women Now Wear Earrings Made From Odds and Ends of Old Jewelry

The savage hangs ornaments in his nose, his lips and his ears. The civilized man scorns the idea of liprings and noserings, and admires earrings only when worn by women. That is the difference between the civilized and the savage attitude in the matter.

Says Mistress Aphra Behn—the first of all English women to earn a living writing—of the native West Indians that in their ears these savages “hang a great many little things, as long beads, bits of tin, brass or silver beat thin, and any shining trinket.”

Had she seen into the future she might have observed that the women of the twentieth century hang not only “a great many little things,” but some rather large things as well. Apparently the feeling is, among some present-day women, that the larger the “shining trinket” that they hang in their ears the more fashionable, up to date, and sophisticated is their appearance.

A well-stocked trinket and jewel box often yields unexpected treasures in the way of things to convert into earrings. Old buttons, if sufficiently “antique” in appearance, may be used in this way, and a pair of crystal elephants originally intended for miniature cabinet ornaments are found excellent material for earrings. A pair of old brooches that would hardly appeal to the up-to-date woman as appropriate for wear as brooches may be hung on little chains to make clever pendant earrings.

Many of these earrings are actually reconstructed from odds and ends found in old jewel boxes and some young women have learned a smattering of jewelry making so that they can make their own earrings in this way. Lacking a sufficiently well-stocked trinket box yourself you may make profitable trips to old pawn shops where you can find all sorts of interesting things for earrings at small cost. Little jewelry shops in Greenwich village in New York show interesting reconstructed earrings of this sort and more than one smart woman has taken to wearing these comparatively inexpensive but original earrings in preference to those of precious stones but conventional design which she might wear instead.

THE SLICE OF HAM

There are so many good ways of serving a slice of ham that it is hard to choose the best of them.

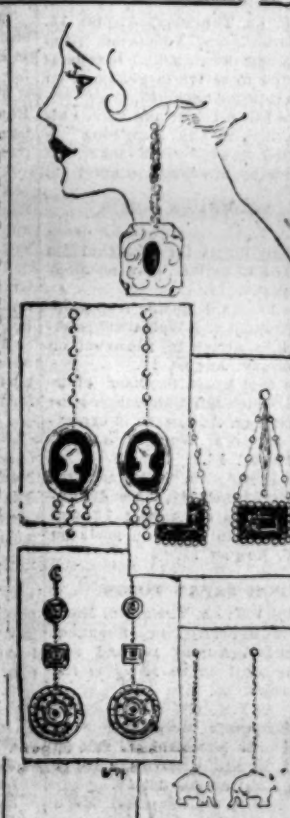

Here is one: Place the ham rolled slightly in a casserole. Prick it with a few whole cloves, sprinkle it with three tablespoons of brown sugar, and pour over it a cupful or two of milk—according to the size of the ham and the casserole. Cover and cook slowly for an hour, when it should be tender and delicious.

Here is another. Soak a slice of ham, from half to three quarters of an inch thick, for an hour. Lift it out of the water and cover both sides with sugar and mustard—dry mustard. Use about a tablespoon of mustard and two of granulated sugar for each side. Lay it in a small dripping pan or a skillet, pour over it a cup of water and half a cup of vinegar, cover and cook in moderate oven for about an hour.

Shantung University Is Given Canadian Charter

Tientsin, Aug. 12.—Telegraphic information has just been received from Canada of a somewhat unique action which took place last week, when the Governor General affixed his signature to a bill which has passed through the Dominion Parliament, conferring a charter upon the Shantung Christian University, Tientsin. Although many universities in China have been incorporated under American laws, and have received American charters, this is probably the first instance of a British charter being granted to an institution not on British soil, and affords interesting proof of the new relations which are developing between Canada and China.

Chocolate Shop

The university which has been marked out for this signal honor has a somewhat unusual history. Commencing twenty years ago by the amalgamation of the higher educational work of two missions in Shantung—the American Presbyterian North and English Baptist—it has now grown to be the largest example of cooperative effect that has so far been attempted in China in the sphere of education. No less than twelve Mission Boards—six American, five English and one Canadian—are uniting their forces in maintaining the university; the buildings and equipment, contributed by interested friends in the United States, Great Britain, Canada and China, represent a total value of over a million dollars; the annual income, similarly contributed, is today approximately $325,000; whilst the present administrative staff and faculty of the university consist of 24 Americans, 33 British, 4 Canadians and 24 Chinese, and include graduates of no less than 31 different universities.

It will be noticed from the above figures that whereas most of the universities established by westerners in China depend for their maintenance, wholly or almost wholly, upon American supporters, the Shantung Christian University is in the interesting position of being staffed almost equally from the United States, from China and from Great Britain, Canada holding the balance between them. This fact lends peculiar interest to the action which has been taken in incorporating the university in Canada, and securing a charter from the Dominion Government. By the terms of this charter a board of governors will now be appointed, representing the various interests which are cooperating in the support of the university, and with headquarters in Toronto. A number of by-laws are being drawn up, in which the constitution of the university will be set out; and powers will be conferred upon the institution, giving it authority to grant such degrees as are in accordance with the laws of China to all students who satisfactorily pass its examinations and reach a scholastic standard comparable to that required by similar universities in Canada.
